STAT

CONFIDENTIAL

File opened to contain talking points for Vice President George Bush to use at cornerstone-laying ceremony, Friday morning, 1 November 1985. VP to speak for 10 minutes. UNCLASSIFIED.

THEME: New building as symbol of growth and confidence.

Express Agency's new optimism since 1980 and support of Congress, President, and the American Public.

Melding of Old and New, buildings and traditions

HUMOR: "Last time I was here, my Boss stole my best CIA joke."

(May 84 - Ground-breaking Ceremony. "Murphy the spy" joke)

*Today we dedicate new building. Although "new addition" to CIA physical plant today, new generation of intel officers will come to see Old and New as One Structure. Pres. Eisenhower, DCI Dulles laid cornerstone of Old building in 1959.

*Symbolic of new growth/confidence of Agency. Building is symbol of renewed support of CIA by President, by overwhelming majority of both parties in Congress, and most importantly by people of this nation. CIA is intel service of American people, works for good of U.S. and allies.

is vital to American survival in increasingly dangerous world.
Intel requirements and challenges are ever-changing; but policy maker's need for critical information on which base national policy will never change.

*New building will house latest state-of-art computers and other technology, but most important will house people who must meet intel challenges. Intel is above all dependent on good people. As DCI, I learned that CIA has the best. Under Bill Casey, the best are getting even better.

STAT

*When complete, new building will house  Agency employees presently in outlying buildings. Will enhance efficiency and security. More important, will provide good working conditions essential to careful, thoughtful assessment of today's major world problems: terrorism, Soviet expansionism, loss of our technology, narcotics trafficking, Third World debt, nuclear and chemical weapons proliferation, and host of other key issues.

*Questions asked by policymakers will grow more difficult, more complex. No longer need "just the facts." Today, policymaker needs real understanding/illumination of issues. These often complicated, inter-related political, economic, military, demographic, scientific developments. CIA's traditional team effort, high degree of expertise required to meet these needs.

*This happy occasion, when CIA begins fourth decade of service to American people and on behalf of freedom throughout world, is time for reflection on great heritage and accomplishments. But even more fitting that we look ahead with optimism on exciting prospects for future. Today we joining symbolically Old and New at CIA.

*I have no doubt that Agency, as it always has, will find new solutions to new challenges as they arise. No doubt that old virtues of self-sacrifice, toil, and character are found in new officers as with old. No doubt that old tradition of service to country will continue new and fresh, with dedication and devotion.

*Thank you.

ADDENDUM: Thanks are due to--

- *McLean Citizens Assn
- *Fairfax County Govt
- *Virginia Dept of Roads and Bridges
- *G.W. Parkway Commission
- *Congressman Frank Wolf
- *and many more, for their fine help.

Dear Hans:

Enclosed for your information is a copy of the Vice President's remarks on the occasion of the cornerstone laying at CIA Headquarters on 1 November 1985. The Vice President's office has authorized its release to us, although--since the event was closed to the media--the address has not been widely distributed.

I hoped to be able to pass you some photographs of the event but that process is delayed by the necessary security screening. Perhaps you can get along with the material contained in the Cornerstone Ceremony Program. In case you misplaced your copy, another is enclosed.

With all best wishes.

Sincerely,

Deputy Director of Public Affairs

Dear Chuck:

Thanks very much for your help in arranging the various details for the Vice President's visit to participate in the cornerstone ceremony last week. I know that he was quite pleased with the arrangements and asked that I convey this to you.

When the pictures taken by the Vice President's photographer are available and cleared, I'll see that some are sent to you.

Thanks again.

Kind regards,

Dear Mr. Miller:

On behalf of the Director of Central Intelligence, William J. Casey, I thank you for the fine support your office provided for our Cornerstone Laying Ceremony on 1 November 1985. The MDW units performed flawlessly, providing exacting touches of color and dignity to a very special occasion.

While the visit of the Vice President is always exciting, this ceremony was especially important to us as it marked continued progress toward completion of a badly needed building addition. We were pleased to have you share our excitement and wish you to know that the event would have been a little less special without your participation.

Particular thanks are extended to Mark Murray, Chaplain (Colonel) David Kent, Chief Warrant Officer Claude Hedspeth, Master Sergeant George Holmberg, and Sergeant Gerald Rice for their extraordinary assistance and counsel.

Sincerely,

276 ¶ Remarks at the Cornerstone-Laying Ceremony for the Central Intelligence Agency
Building, Langley, Virginia. November 3, 1959

Mr. Dulles, Secretary McElroy, Ladies and Gentlemen of the Central Intelligence Agency:

America's fundamental aspiration is the preservation of peace. To this end we seek to develop policies and arrangements to make the peace both permanent and just. This can be done only on the basis of comprehensive and appropriate information.

In war nothing is more important to a commander than the facts concerning the strength, dispositions, and intentions of his opponent, and the proper interpretation of those facts. In peacetime the necessary facts are of a different nature. They deal with conditions, resources, requirements, and attitudes prevailing in the world. They and their correct interpretation are essential to the development of policy to further our long term national security and best interests. To provide information of this kind is the task of the organization of which you are a part.

No task could be more important.

Upon the quality of your work depends in large measure the success of our effort to further the Nation's position in the international scene.

By its very nature the work of this agency demands of its members the highest order of dedication, ability, trustworthiness, and selflessness—to say nothing of the finest type of courage, whenever needed. Success cannot be advertised: failure cannot be explained. In the work of Intelligence, heroes are undecorated and unsung, often even among their own fraternity. Their inspiration is rooted in patriotism—their reward can be little except the conviction that they are performing a unique and indispensable service for their country, and the knowledge that America needs and appreciates their efforts. I assure you this is indeed true.

The reputation of your organization for quality and excellence of performance, under the leadership of your Director, Mr. Allen Dulles, is a proud one.

Because I deeply believe these things, I deem it a great privilege to participate in this ceremony of cornerstone laying for the national headquarters of the Central Intelligence Agency. On this spot will rise a beautiful and a useful structure. May it long endure, to serve the cause of America and of peace.

Thank you.

277 ¶ The President's News Conference of November 4, 1959.

THE PRESIDENT. In order to confirm some of the things that you have been reading in the papers, I want to give you an announcement, which may be of some interest.

I am planning to leave Washington on December 4th on a 2½ weeks' trip which will take me to nine countries.

In response to friendly invitations from the heads of state concerned, I plan to make brief informal visits to Rome, where I hope also to call on His Holiness the Pope, to Ankara, Karachi, Kabul, and to be in New Delhi for the inauguration of the American Exhibit at the World Agricultural Fair which opens on December 11th.

From India, I plan to visit Tehran and Athens en route to Paris to the Western summit meeting scheduled for December 19th. On my way home from Paris, I shall stop briefly in Rabat.

When the detailed schedule of this trip is fixed in consultation with the several governments concerned, I shall, of course, make it known to you.

There are three critical dates. December 3d, I think, or 4th is the very earliest date I could possibly go because there is all of the great work of developing the legislative program and the budget for the coming year.

December 11 is critical because that is the day when the Agricultural Fair will open.

December 19 is a critical one because that is the day I am to be in Paris. So this doesn't leave a great deal of time for dallying along the way.

That is all I have to say.<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> On November 5 the White House released a statement concerning the composition of the party to accompany the President on his trip. Noting that Secretary Herter would be unable to go because of duties connected with the NATO Ministerial Council Meeting in Paris on December 15, the statement announced that the ranking State Department representative would be Robert Murphy, Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs. Other members of the party would include White House administrative Staff assistants and confidential secretaries.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD

SUBJECT: Cornerstone Ceremony

1. Someone in the Advance Office of the Vice President's office finally talked to me. His name is Tim McBride and he is Deputy Assistant for Advance. His boss is David J. Ryder, who is in China at the moment. Their phone number is 456-7935. I asked McBride two questions.

° What is the Vice President's preference regarding whether the ceremony is open or closed to the media?

McBride's understanding from his scheduling office was that the event was to be open and about 1000 people would attend. I explained that the 1000 would be CIA people plus a few special guests. With that in mind he promised to take the question to the Vice President and to get us an answer. I told him we wanted only to do the Vice President's bidding. He will call me.

° When can we get White House approval of the proposed site and scenario?

McBride promised a get-together at Headquarters during the week of 23 September for the purpose of site inspection and review of plans. I will call him for a date.

STAT 2. I have asked [ ] to contact the Military District of Washington and to order a band, chaplain, and a color guard for 31 October. She is proceeding on the basis that we will want them whether the ceremony is open or closed to the media. They can always be cancelled in case the White House or anyone else doesn't want them.

STAT 3. In my absence, I have asked [ ]
STAT to attend the DDA planning meeting in the DDA Conference Room at 1300 hours on 4 September, and have notified [ ] of this. ADDA Jim McDonald will chair the meeting.
